

Beyond Origins of New Mexico Families

A Brief Status Report Compiled by José Antonio Esquibel
December 2012

This compilation is intended to serve as a guide for people researching their ancestral Spanish New Mexico family roots by providing a brief status report on how far back in time various Nuevomejicano families have been traced to date.

The Internet has become a primary tool for conducting genealogy research. With just a few clicks of a computer mouse some people can quickly locate information that shows a lengthy ancestry, but most often without any source documentation. For people that are new to New Mexico genealogy, it can be rather confusing to sort out genealogical fiction from credible genealogical research.

As tempting as it is to believe what is posted on the Internet, it is important to be discerning about the information found online. Before accepting the information as valid, use the information as a guide to locate credible published sources that cite primary documents or to uncover those primary sources, many of which are available on microfilm and some are now available in digital format on the Internet, especially as posted on www.FamilySearch.org.

Although a number of New Mexico Spanish families have been traced to communities in Spain and Portugal, only a very small number of records of passage from Spain to the Americas seem to have survived the passage of time. A number of researchers, including myself, have made exhaustive searches of published passenger catalogues as well as catalogues now available on the Internet, with only limited success. In the compilation below, an asterisk (*) is used to identify those families for which records of passage have been located. The search continues.

If you are aware that the ancestry of any one of the families listed in this compilation has been extended beyond what is indicated in this status report, you are invited to notify me by contacting me via Facebook (José

If I missed a family and you would like to see it added to the next update in 2013, you are welcome to contact me via Facebook (José Antonio Esquibel) or send an e-mail to jesquibel@yahoo.com.
